'Ike' Opens Talks

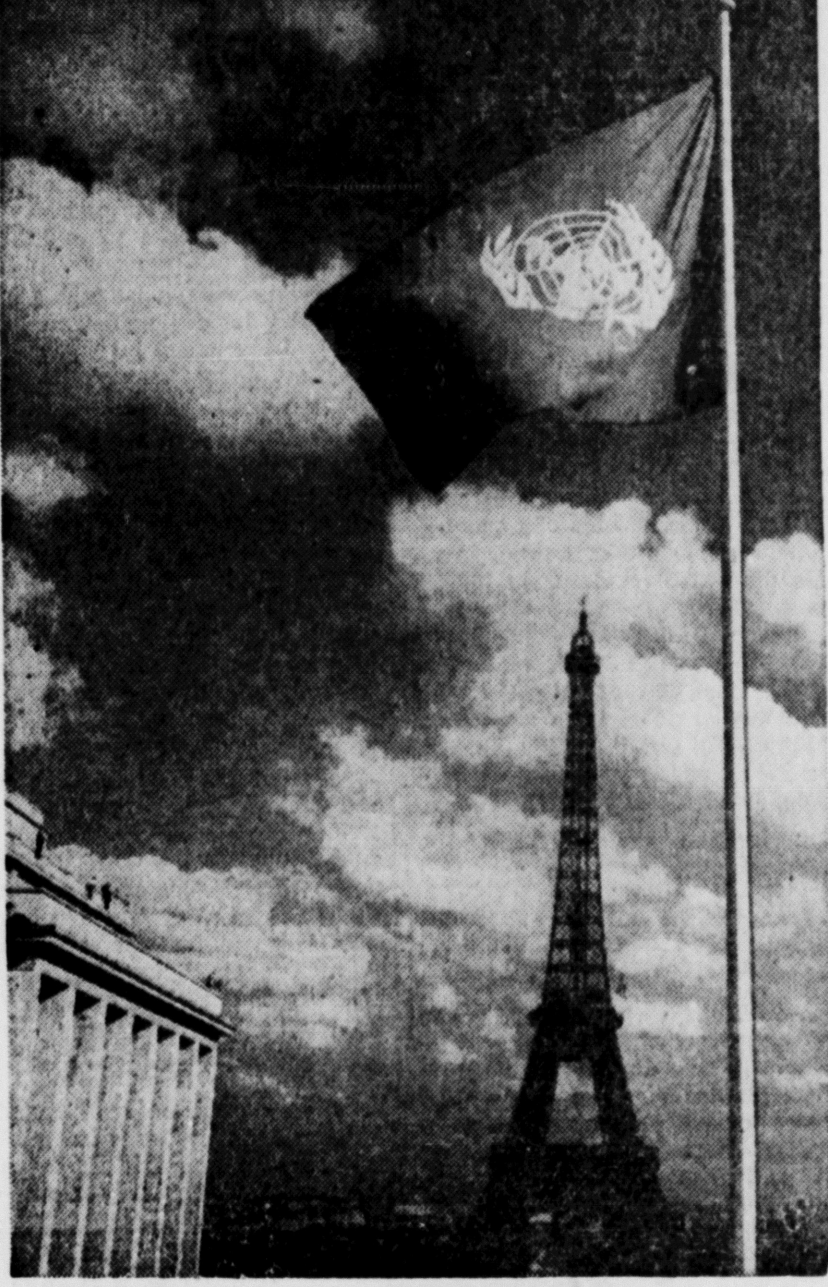

Politics Said Not On Agenda

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — Gen. Eisenhower met today with Pentagon officials in the first of his series of conferences with President Truman and other U. S. leaders on the future of Western European defense.

The Atlantic pact commander, called to Washington for two days of military discussions, left his downtown hotel suite early today for the Pentagon.

"Ike" lunched with the President alone in Blair House. The luncheon brought to a climax intense speculation that despite disavowal of any intention to discuss politics, the chief executive and the general may talk about the Eisenhower-for-President boom.

On his arrival at the Pentagon, Eisenhower went directly to the office of Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. A few minutes later he and Bradley entered Defense Secretary Lovett's office.

THE FLAG OF THE United Nations is unfurled from the Palais de Chaillot, where the UN General Assembly will open its sixth session Tuesday. The Eiffel Tower is in the background.

THE PRESIDENTIAL conference came just two days before Mr. Truman is to address the nation on foreign policy on coast-to-coast radio and television networks at 10:30 p. m. (EST) Wednesday. But Presidential Secretary Joseph Short said that the address will not deal with the Eisenhower or today's Blair House conference.

Abroad it was indicated that President Truman's address would deal with new Western peace proposals expected to be made this week at the United Nations General Assembly meeting in Paris.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said the proposals to be laid before the UN to reduce the threat of war with Russia would be "sensational."

Eisenhower has emphasized repeatedly to newsmen that "I'm here for one purpose only—to talk over military affairs with my superiors at the Pentagon and other officers here."

It was learned on the highest authority that the President has no idea of talking presidential politics with the five-star general.

However, some seasoned politicians of both parties contend it would be difficult for Mr. Truman to review European defense plans without Ike's future personal plans coming up.

Eisenhower is being urged by a group of liberal GOP leaders to declare himself available for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sen. Carlson, (R) Kan., is in Europe now on this project and Sen. Duff, (R) Pa., plans to go over for the same purpose in December.

Upon his arrival in Washington last night, however, Ike indicated he had no plans to confer with Duff.

Naval Airman Writes Here For Ring He Lost

A Corpus Christi naval airman is $2 richer and has his fiancée's ring back thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Funk, managers of Fairmont restaurant, West Main street.

Bill Cunningham, who is assigned to the U. S. Naval Air Station, in the Texas city, travelling through Circleville Oct. 24 from Pittsburgh to Corpus Christi, stopped at the restaurant for lunch.

While washing his hands, he inadvertently left his ring, a gift from his fiancée, in the washroom of the restaurant.

Cunningham's letter, sent to The Circleville Herald, explained:

"On Oct. 24 I was driving from Pittsburgh to Corpus Christi for duty. I stopped in Circleville for lunch about 2:30 p. m.

"My problem is that I left my fiancée's ring in the washroom of one of your restaurants. . . I can't remember its name but it's situated on the right side of the street going west on U. S. 22 to Washington C. H.

"AS YOU WALK in the front door there is a cashier's counter on the left and booths and a juke box on the right. The washroom is on the right, too, with a light switch on the outside.

"I would have written before but had no address until yesterday (Oct. 31), and would have ridden back to get the ring but didn't discover I had left it until I arrived in Louisville.

"I would appreciate it immensely if you would try to locate it for me."

Canal Dispute Still Boils

Egypt Underground Army Ready To Battle British

CAIRO, Nov. 5—Field Marshal Aziz El Masri Pasha announced today his Egyptian "liberation battalions" are armed and ready and await only the green light to drive Britain from the Suez Canal Zone.

The field marshal, former commander of the Egyptian army, warned that Britain must cease its "criminal aggression" against Egypt or "they will pay dearly for every drop of Egyptian blood shed in the canal zone."

Banned Quaker Puts OSU Prexy On Touchy Spot

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5—Dr. Cecil E. Hinshaw, Quaker educator who was barred from speaking on the Ohio State university campus, demanded today that OSU President Howard Bevis make public the reasons for banning him.

Dr. Hinshaw's demand was contained in a letter to Bevis which said he had twice been refused the reasons for the ban against his appearance. He wrote Bevis that "you have no moral or legal right thus to damage my reputation without being willing to state openly and clearly the reasons for your action."

Dr. Hinshaw added that "in view of the circumstances that gave birth to the rule, the implication is quite plain that I am considered by you to be subversive."

"If you can prove your charges, you have nothing to fear by such action. If you doubt you can prove your charges, then you did not have the right to ban me from speaking on the campus."

Detective Held For Robberies

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 — A veteran New York police detective was booked on robbery and assault charges today after being identified as the bandit in at least seven drug store holdups.

The suspect, George Killoran, 36, was also stripped of his shield and gun and suspended from the force.

Police said witnesses identified Killoran as the man who robbed six drug stores in Queens and one in the Bronx. One of the Queens stores was held up by the same man three times.

Envoys Received By Sewage Aide?

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—The mayor's committee on management survey, gathering material on job classification and pay adjustment, found the following post defined on the New York city rolls:

"Duties: Receiving foreign diplomatic envoys and dignitaries; setting up appointments for such persons."

The present civil service title for this position is "Sewage Treatment Worker."

Reds Give Quick Notice Cold War To Be Continued

BALLOT-COUNTERS MAY HAVE EASY TASK

Just So-So Turnout Being Expected For Tuesday's Election In County

Pickaway County voters will go to the polls Tuesday, but lack of candidate activity plus Old Man Winter is expected to bring a comparatively light vote.

In Circleville, 22 office seekers face the voters, but absence of open campaigning by any of the candidates indicates so-so balloting.

Failure of candidates to advise the voters what they are for or against plus John Q. Voter's normal don't-give-a-damn attitude (see four-column picture at bottom of page) may give Tuesday's ballot-counters an easy task.

On questions and issues ballots, there will be numerous extras for the voter.

In Circleville, voters will decide whether there will be a commission named to form a charter. There will be a one-mill tax levy for city government operating expense. And local voters will be asked to renew a school tax levy.

IN THE VARIOUS townships, there will be scattered tax levies, nearly all renewals.

In Washington Township, there will be a wet-or-dry ballot.

Most important city race is the mayoral contest, with incumbent Mayor Thurman I. Miller, a Democrat, facing Edward M. Amey, Republican. Election of a Republican to that post would mean the first GOP mayor in Circleville in about 20 years.

President of Council Ben H. Gordon, City Auditor Lillian M. Young, City Treasurer Everett P. Stocklen and City Solicitor George E. Gerhardt, all Democrats, are unopposed.

For city council, three councilmen-at-large are to be elected—with Joe E. Brink, D, and Walden Reichelderfer, D, incumbents.

Harold Clifton, D, Richard W. Penn, R, Dewey Speakman, R, and John F. O'Brien, Ind., are other candidates on the slate.

Only other contest in the council race is in the city's First Ward, with John D. Robinson, D, and Robert E. Hedges, R, as candidates.

Other unopposed council candidates are:

Second Ward—Ray Cook, D.

Third Ward—George L. Crites, D.

Fourth Ward—Boyd Horn, D.

OTHERS SEEKING city offices include board of education candidates—Ray W. Davis, James I. Smith, Richard W. Samuel, David S. Goldschmidt and Robert L. Brehmer Jr.

Davis and Smith are incumbents. The third member, whose term also is expiring, is J. O. Eagleson who is not seeking reelection.

Eagleson, long-time educator here, said he was dropping out because he thought it was "time for the younger folks to take over."

Representing the younger element are Samuel, Goldschmidt and Brehmer. Samuel and Goldschmidt are past presidents of the local Parent-Teacher Association, and Brehmer is president of the local Rotary Club.

Voters also will be asked to give consideration to a proposed amendment to the constitution of Ohio.

The proposal asks voters whether the constitution shall be amended to provide for more than one probate judge in any Ohio county.

At present, the law is that each county in the state is entitled to only one probate judge. If approved, the amendment proposal will pave the way for setting up more judgeships in counties where paperwork has become tremendous.

Voters of Circleville Township (this includes the city of Circleville) will be asked to vote on a township non-partisan ballot in which a trustee, clerk and constable are to be named.

Nominations For President Told In Articles

"I nominate for President. . . ." It will be a few months before those portentous words roll out over the assembled delegates at the 1952 Republican and Democratic national conventions.

But the voices are limbering up. Men are being chosen. Ranks are forming. Arguments war hot.

Will Mr. Truman run again? Will he be General Eisenhower? Sen. Robert A. Taft? Whatever the outcome of the campaign and of the nominating conventions, these will be names in the forefront.

Why do Taft's backers think he should be the next occupant of the White House? What are the arguments of the Eisenhower boosters? What do leaders of the Democratic Party think about Mr. Truman's chances if he runs again? Why are some Democrats strongly opposed to Mr. Truman?

The answers will be given in the Circleville Herald, beginning today, in a series of four articles written by prominent Republican and Democratic members of Congress. Their campaign previews are grouped under the title "I Nominate for President" and the first one appears in today's editions, Page Three.

More Counter-Proposals Heard In Armistice Talks

MUNSAN, Nov. 5—Allied delegates proposed today the setting up of a joint six-man board to draw a cease-fire line across Korea while other armistice issues are being negotiated.

The new formal proposal was presented to the Communists at an 18th meeting of the Allied-Red subcommittee dealing with the deadlocked buffer zone question at Panmunjom.

Radio Peiping said the Reds also had offered a fresh proposal which would leave them in possession of disputed Kaesong and the Allies in control of the Kumsong and Kosong bulges inside North Korea.

At Monday's Panmunjom talks, which lasted four hours and 25 minutes, the two United Nations members of the subcommittee suggested that a special board consisting of three officers from each side take up the knotty buffer zone issue.

UNDER THE Allied plan, the two full five-man delegations would proceed in the meanwhile to discuss the remaining items of the armistice conference agenda.

These include the establishment of a commission to supervise the carrying out of armistice terms and arrangements for the exchange of war prisoners.

The UN delegates proposed that the special board determine location of the battle contact line as it would exist on the date when agreement on the other issues is reached.

This line would run through the center of a demilitarized belt about two and a half miles wide.

The two Communist subcommittee members took the Allied proposal under advisement and may give their reply at a 19th session set for 11 o'clock Tuesday morning (9 p. m. Monday EST).

Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodges, one of two UN subcommittee members, pointed out to the Reds that both sides now agree on the principle that the cease-fire line should be based on the battle front, with adjustments to be made individually as necessary.

HE PROPOSED that the special board, if set up, determine the battle contact line while the delegations make the necessary adjustments.

Radio Peiping said the Communist delegates had proposed that both sides withdraw about a mile and a quarter from the present line of battle contact.

This would mean Communist troops would remain in the controversial South Korean city of Kaesong, former armistice conference site.

It would leave UN troops in possession of the North Korean bulges near Kumsong and Kosong, on the central and eastern fronts.

Two Men Lose Driving Rights For Five Years

Two Pickaway County men Monday had their driving licenses suspended for five years in common pleas court.

John Minor, 45, Circleville Route 4, and Theodore Binion, 45, of Lockbourne Route 1, were given $10 fines and costs, 30-day terms in county jail (suspended), three years driving probation and their driver's licenses suspended for five years, by Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

They were bound to common pleas court Saturday on $300 bond each after appearing in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root on charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol, and being in actual physical control of an automobile while under the influence.

Minor was fined $100 in Mayor Thurman I. Miller's court about two weeks ago after he waived a jury trial and entered a plea of guilty to driving while drunk.

He originally appeared before the mayor Aug. 4 and the case was handed to common pleas court at that time. Judge Radcliff ordered the case against Minor returned to mayor's court on dispute that Miller's transcript did not state that "it will be in the interests of the public good."

Miller decided to make final disposition of the case and leveled the fine.

The second defendant, Binion, was also bound to common pleas court Saturday by Magistrate Root, on a charge that he was in actual physical control of an automobile while under the influence of alcohol.

He was arrested Saturday morning in Harrison Township by Deputy Sheriff Walter Richards. He pleaded guilty on appearing before the magistrate.

88th 'No' Cast Against Chinese

Russia Slated To Try Again

PARIS, Nov. 5—Russia served quick notice on the Western powers today that the Cold War will roll on without compromise.

Five minutes after the closing session of the 1950 UN General Assembly began in Paris, Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik demanded that a resolution on the question of seating Communist China be transferred to the sixth assembly opening tomorrow.

The Russian motion was defeated 20 to 11, with 11 abstentions.

This means the Russians will submit an identical resolution on the floor tomorrow.

Malik vigorously attacked the assembly's committee assigned in 1950 to report on ways and means of seating Red China.

He accused it of "astounding failure," of practicing "intolerable procrastination," and attributed this to what he termed "hostile maneuvers by certain states."

MALIK APPEALED to "those delegates cherishing international justice" and sincerely interested in peace "to rally to the support of the Soviet motion."

The United Nations previously had rejected 87 times the Soviet demands to seat Communist China. U. S. Secretary of State Acheson is expected to move to the rostrum quickly with a loud "no" when Russia again tries in the new UN session.

Acheson and Anglo-French leaders have mapped a joint strategy aimed at blocking any bid for an Iron Curtain peace and to crush efforts to picture Russia as the "world's champion" of peace.

The United States, Britain and France are anticipating a Russian bid for a conference limited to the big powers to settle the world's problems, Communist style.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, bearing the Kremlin's plans, arrives today in Paris by train for the opening of the 1951 UN General Assembly tomorrow.

Communist supporters are soliciting signatures on "peace petitions" and reportedly are planning to demonstrate tomorrow outside the Palais de Chaillot, site of the meeting.

Mex Muggles Carriers Nabbed By State Patrol

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Federal narcotics agents today are questioning two Mexicans arrested south of Columbus with five large grain sacks containing an estimated $50,000 worth of marijuana.

The pair was arrested Friday night by State Highway Patrolman J. W. O'Neil in a routine car check just outside of Grove City. During the inspection, he found 200 pounds of the "weed" which is believed to be the biggest haul in this part of the country.

Narcotics agents said the "muggles" was finely ground and ready to be made into approximately 50,000 cigarettes which retail as high as $1 each.

Police said the men admitted they had picked the dope up from a contact in Mexico and were taking it to another contact in New York City.

They were identified as Jose Francisco Santos, 31, of Laredo, Texas, and Guillermo Gallegos Garza, 19, of Nueva Laredo, Mex.

This means the Russians will submit an identical resolution on the floor tomorrow.

Malik vigorously attacked the assembly's committee assigned in 1950 to report on ways and means of seating Red China.

He accused it of "astounding failure," of practicing "intolerable procrastination," and attributed this to what he termed "hostile maneuvers by certain states."

MALIK APPEALED to "those delegates cherishing international justice" and sincerely interested in peace "to rally to the support of the Soviet motion."

The United Nations previously had rejected 87 times the Soviet demands to seat Communist China. U. S. Secretary of State Acheson is expected to move to the rostrum quickly with a loud "no" when Russia again tries in the new UN session.

Acheson and Anglo-French leaders have mapped a joint strategy aimed at blocking any bid for an Iron Curtain peace and to crush efforts to picture Russia as the "world's champion" of peace.

The United States, Britain and France are anticipating a Russian bid for a conference limited to the big powers to settle the world's problems, Communist style.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, bearing the Kremlin's plans, arrives today in Paris by train for the opening of the 1951 UN General Assembly tomorrow.

Communist supporters are soliciting signatures on "peace petitions" and reportedly are planning to demonstrate tomorrow outside the Palais de Chaillot, site of the meeting.

SECRETARY OF State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman were spending today contacting delegates of the smaller nations and trying to line them up behind the West on major issues.

The usual flood of rumors about an all-inclusive Big Three or American peace plan boils down to an insistence that Russia must make a choice between two plans:

1. Peace with disarmament on United Nations terms, or
2. A "race" on atomic armaments while the West develops stronger regional pacts to safeguard the free world from attack.

Mex Muggles Carriers Nabbed By State Patrol

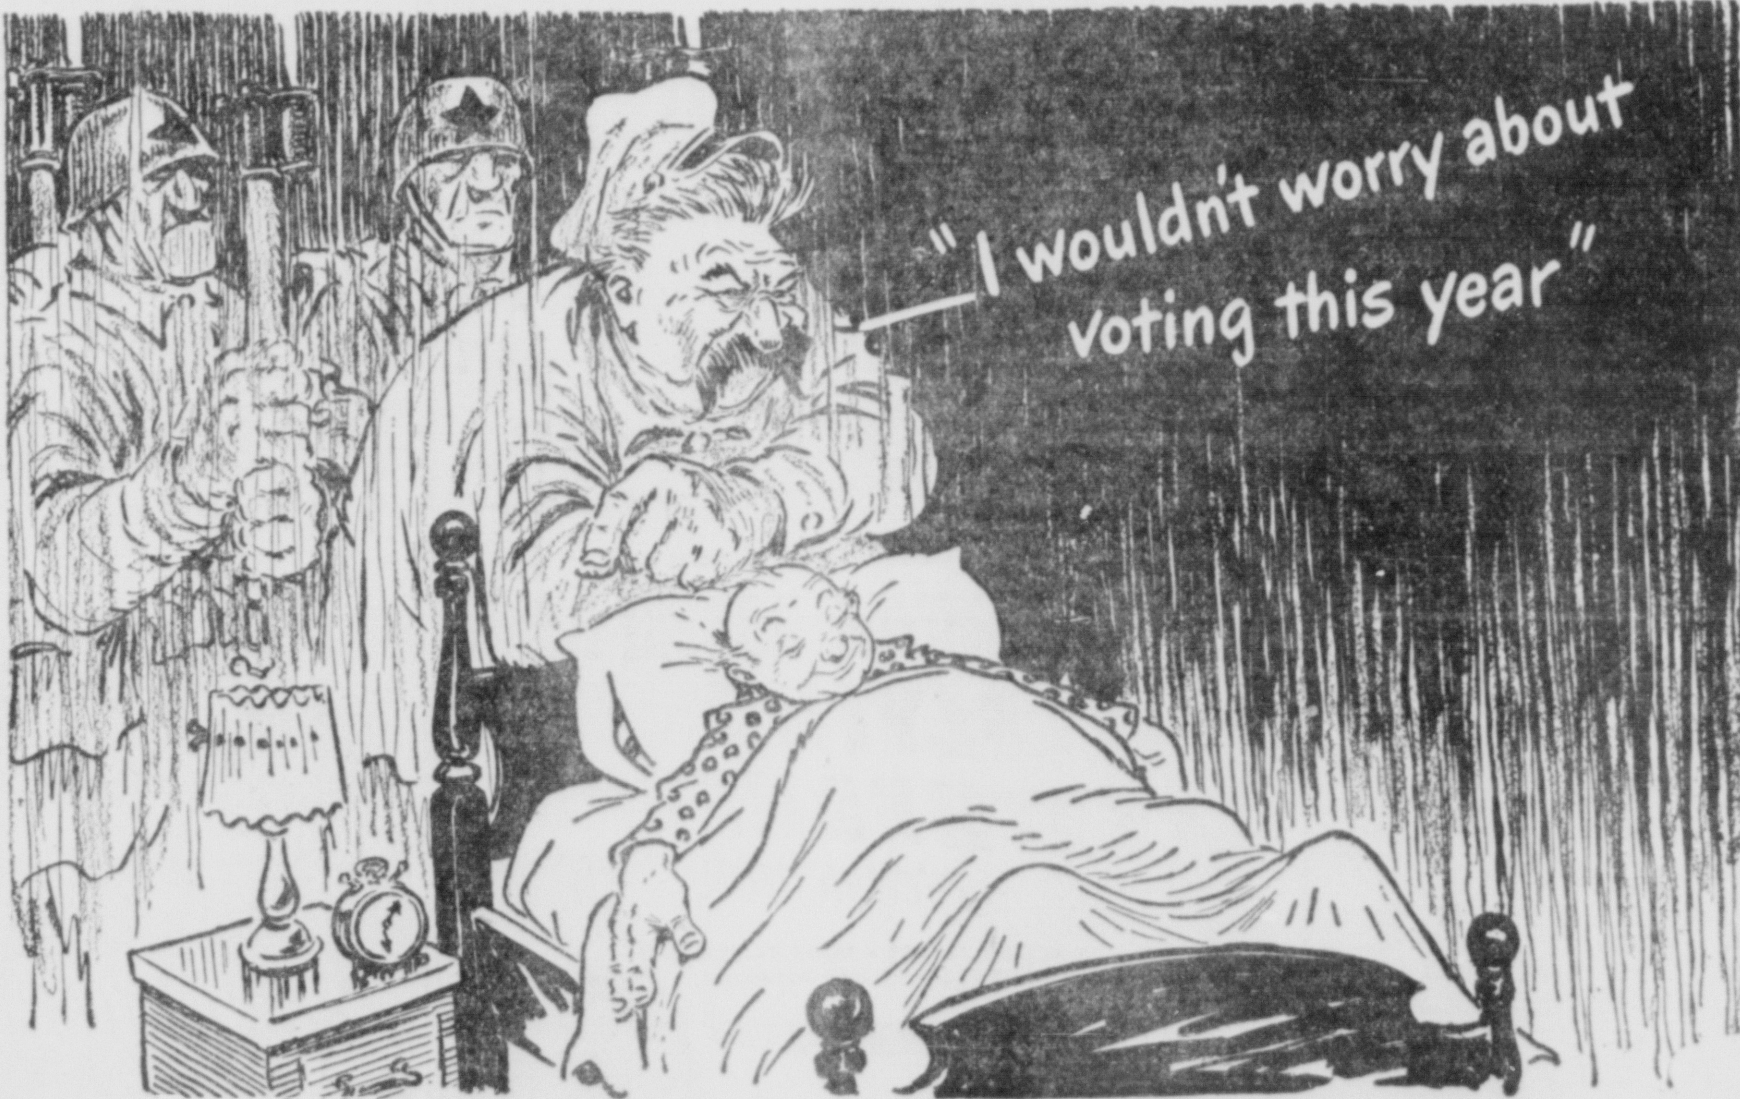

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Federal narcotics agents today are questioning two Mexicans arrested south of Columbus with five large grain sacks containing an estimated $50,000 worth of marijuana.

The pair was arrested Friday night by State Highway Patrolman J. W. O'Neil in a routine car check just outside of Grove City. During the inspection, he found 200 pounds of the "weed" which is believed to be the biggest haul in this part of the country.

Narcotics agents said the "muggles" was finely ground and ready to be made into approximately 50,000 cigarettes which retail as high as $1 each.

Police said the men admitted they had picked the dope up from a contact in Mexico and were taking it to another contact in New York City.

They were identified as Jose Francisco Santos, 31, of Laredo, Texas, and Guillermo G. G. Garza, 19, of Nueva Laredo, Mex.

Tuesday is election day in Pickaway County.

Let's carry the insidious suggestion in the above picture a little further.

This isn't a Presidential election year, so you're not going to wear out shoe leather tramping to the polls.

That's pretty good news to Comrade Joe.

In most cases, Joe doesn't care which candidate gets elected—even though he may get a few pinkos into office. He knows that generally too many "true blue" Americans just stay home on Election Day.

The point is, Joe is bound to figure the "Freedom muscle" is getting just a little flabby when we don't give it the best exercise it can ever get—voting.

Our forefathers fought for Freedom in 1776. The American freemen's votes have kept Freedom ever since. Votes are the muscles that put strength in Democracy. But votes, like muscles, get weak when not used.

We were pretty flabby last election; 45 million qualified voters didn't go to the polls.

Joe Stalin wants to see our country even softer. Do you? Or do you want to show the world that Freedom works? Then, mark your "X" for Freedom — Tuesday — Election Day.

Senator Robert A. Taft has stated the basic issue of 1952. We must decide whether we shall continue the policies of the present government which are moving toward totalitarian government and war or whether we shall return to the American principles which have stimulated our progress towards freedom and peace.

This is a challenge to Republicans—and to all Americans. It is the first clear note of a vigorous new leadership which has been sounded in recent years.

We can rally around this battle-cry. For the first time in many campaigns, the Republican Party will not be handicapped by advocating a program which sounds like "me too" on every major issue.

WE CAN FIGHT for these ideas, and in this fight, I believe that all Americans can join with us.

Rosenberg Couple Seeking Appeal

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Ethel and Julius Rosenberg will ask the circuit court of appeals today to set aside their death sentence for passing atomic bomb secrets to Russia.

The couple, lodged in the death house at Sing Sing since sentencing April 5, was originally scheduled to be electrocuted in May, but the execution was deferred pending appeal.

Mrs. Rosenberg, 35, and her husband, 33, were found guilty after Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, David Greenglass, testified against them.

of free enterprise—not lip service to it. This means that we do not regard controls as part of the machinery of government. We do not welcome such "emergency measures" as government licensing of business which was proposed recently by a high official of the present national administration. It means that we emphasize opportunity, not restriction, incentive, not restraint.

Second, we believe in the reduction of all government spending. This applies to civilian expenditures first and foremost, but it extends equally to waste and extravagance in our military establishment which has become sacrosanct and untouchable under the present government.

We have seen sufficient evidence of foolish and unnecessary spending in the military department to justify scrutiny of every dime appropriated by Congress.

Third, we believe that we must restore as a fundamental principle of government the conviction that local governments know more about what is good for their people than a federal bureaucracy centralized in Washington and screened by regulations and red-tape from the down-to-earth problems which face every home in our country.

WE MUST make the tremendous effort that will be required to reverse the pattern established by the present national government and restore self-reliance and self-sufficiency to the villages, towns, cities, and states of our country. Only this effort can end the shocking decline of political morality in our government today.

And fourth, we must present an affirmative foreign policy which is not dictated by the attitudes of the Soviet Union, or by fear of its aggressive and subversive activities. As of this moment, our country is reacting to a fear-psychosis which reflects the attitudes of the men who are running our government. The Russians have a positive program.

They mean to set up states created in their image all over the world. We must have an equally positive program which will lead the nations of the world to resist Communism on their own volition.

It will do no permanent good if we exhaust our own resources without making our allies strong.

The policies of this administration have contributed to the aggrandizement of the Soviet Union. We must not go on endlessly in the same direction, ignoring those who share our convictions and coddling those who would turn upon us in any major showdown.

Senator Taft can lead the fight for these principles. I am confident that they are shared by the overwhelming majority of the American people. If we fight for them honestly, we can win the support of the silent millions who have refused to choose in the past between tweedle-dee-dum and tweedle-dee-dee.

Shelby Farmers Dislike Newest Milk Regulation

SHELBY, Nov. 5 — Farmers in the Shelby area are protesting a proposed measure that would order the retailing of grade A milk only in Shelby stores and dairies.

Reed Walker, operator of the Walker Dairy, said that the proposed legislation would make it necessary for farmers to cement up their barns where the milking is done and to purchase cooling equipment at a cost to each farmer of $1,500 to $2,000.

In addition, he said, no animals except milk cows could be kept in the barn thus making it necessary

MIDWEST FINDINGS LISTED

Rural Schools Listed As Deplorable In Survey

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Earlier this year, Benjamin Fine, New York Times correspondent, conducted a six-month, nationwide survey of America's public school system.

He presents an eye-opening report on the conditions of rural schools, and part of his report is as follows:

"Our rural schools are still in deplorable condition. Nationwide, 3½ million farm children are getting a second-rate education. That's one out of every four! Some of the worst school conditions in the United States are found right in the heart of the rich, Midwest farm states."

"On my tour, I spoke to hundreds of teachers, parents, school officials, and to children themselves. I saw firsthand how America is cheating its rural school pupils. And the story is not a pretty one."

"With few exceptions, the rural schools are still the stepchildren of America's huge educational system. In almost every respect, city children get a better academic break. The urban teacher averages four years of college training, the rural teacher averages two. The city teacher gets an annual average salary of $3,300; the rural teacher must settle for $2,200."

OF THE 80,000 emergency, sub-standard teachers in the nation's classrooms, 65,000 are found in rural schools. We spent about $200 a year on the education of each urban child, and $130 for each farm pupil.

"Drive through any section of the Midwest—as well as rural areas in other parts of the country—and you will be shocked by the large number of ancient, dilapidated schoolhouses that dot the countryside. Some are not much more than abandoned shacks; no decent farmer would keep his prize hogs in many of the buildings I have visited. Yet the same farmer sends his young boys and girls there."

"For the most part, rural schools lack any type of modern improvement found in better city schools. They do not have gymnasiums, lunchrooms, vocational workshops, science laboratories, or even comfortable tables and chairs."

"But I am not too concerned with the buildings, bad as they are. I am more distressed by the teachers

I have met while visiting rural schools. After all, a good teacher in a wooden building is better than a wooden teacher in a good building. In many instances the teachers are more than incompetent—they are an actual menace to the health, welfare, and spiritual growth of our children. Here's what the survey showed:

"ONE THOUSAND rural teachers have less than a high school education; 3,000 have not gone beyond high school; 45,000 have not completed one year of college, and 100,000 have not completed two."

"The Midwest is no exception—it has its share of incompetent, emotionally unstable, sorry-looking teachers. Perhaps the salaries paid have most to do with this. I spoke to teachers who were getting as little as $75 or $100 a month. It was not unusual to find teachers who were taking home an average of $1,000 a year or less. What can you expect at that salary?"

"These, then are the steps I would recommend:

"1. Adopt federal or better state financing for those rural communities that are too poor to provide necessary funds without help."

"2. Establish larger units of school administration."

"3. Secure better prepared teachers. To do this, it will be necessary

STATES HAVE THE SAY

UNDER authority of a "rider" attached to the tax-raising bill recently passed by Congress, it is now possible to make public the names of all persons who are on government relief rolls. It was one of two features of the bill which met with opposition from President Truman. The other was the amount of the tax increases. He thought taxes should have been higher.

Because relief rolls are now open to public inspection, it is widely predicted many unworthy persons will be separated from this boon.

It is now up to state legislatures to authorize actual publication of welfare lists, but if they listen to professional welfare workers few will do so. It is contended thousands of older persons are on welfare lists simply because their well-to-do children will not care for them as long as they can shift the burden to the government. It is predicted the threat of publicity would, through its effect on family pride, cause them to change their attitude.

The yearly cost of public welfare has mounted to more than $2,000,000,000 in federal aid alone—and at a time when the nation is presumed to be highly prosperous, with jobs for all.

JOKER IN FEDERAL AID

IT IS gradually dawning upon the American taxpayers that the millions of dollars the federal government is paying out in "grants-in-aid" to the various states is coming from the pockets of the taxpayers themselves, and not from some mysterious treasure chest which automatically refills itself. Last year the total was more than $2 billion. In 1920 it was only $106 million.

Except in cases of emergency these grants are made on a matching basis, the various states appropriating sums equal to those received from the federal government. Many states have been reduced to parlous financial straits by taxes necessary to meet their obligations in this respect, and many state governments are learning that what had been looked upon as blessing now turns out to be a curse.

Federal taxes collected in the various states are so vast that the money returned in the form of "aid" sinks into insignificance in comparison.

What it amounts to is simply this: The states send the money to Washington, which retains more than 95 per cent of it, then returns the balance in a grand gesture of generosity—not neglecting, however, to instruct the states what to do with it.

Defending Secretary Acheson against charges of being a fancy dresser, a Southern editor declares it is possible for a noble heart to beat beneath a pair of striped pants.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Prof. Henry Steele Commager of Columbia university once wrote:

"Certainly it is a gross perversion not only of the concept of loyalty but of the concept of Americanism to identify it with a particular economic system."

This is undoubtedly true, but it is unimportant. I do not believe that any question of an "economic system" is involved in the contest which is being waged in this country against the Communists, against subversive or corrupt persons. Certainly when a protest is made against a thieving tax collector, the issue is not whether he is a Capitalist or a Socialist, a Republican or a Democrat. The point is that we are shocked by the fact that thieves have worked their way into government. We challenge them as thieves.

So Communists are not opposed because they believe in government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange but because they are agents, spies, provocateurs for an alien power, for a government that uses propaganda, infiltration and corruption as a means of military conquest.

Those, therefore, who use the Fifth Amendment, which they have a legal right to use, to avoid giving information concerning this conspiracy are morally guilty of aiding those who would destroy this country.

Here is a definite conflict between a legal right and a moral responsibility. Which shall prevail?

The Fifth Amendment provides:

"No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

Those who, in Communist cases, claim immunity from questioning under the terms of the Fifth Amendment do so under the words, "nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself."

Actually, it is no crime in the United States to be a Communist, but it is illegal to engage in a conspiracy to destroy our government. It is not illegal to oppose the capitalist system but it is illegal to be a spy.

A congressional committee is not a court of law and does not try cases, but the information gathered by such a committee may be used by prosecuting officials to obtain an indictment for a crime. While it is not possible to claim double jeopardy in connection with a congressional committee, it is possible to claim self-incrimination.

Antiseptics Used To Combat Infection In Surgical Cases

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

LISTER, an English contemporary of the great Pasteur, was the first physician to give practical effect to the Frenchman's discovery of germs and their role in the infection of wounds. Lister pioneered their antiseptic treatment, and since that day physicians and scientists have maintained the search for ever-better methods of cleansing and sterilizing the skin following injury and before surgery.

Two types of germs are usually present on the skin. One, confined to the outer surface, is called transient; the other, known as resident, is more deeply imbedded in the hair follicles and the glands underlying the skin. As might be expected, the former type is fairly easy to get rid of by cleansing. The latter type is more difficult to deal with and is a frequent cause of infection.

Prevention of Infection

Scientists, in an effort to discover which antiseptics were of great value in the prevention of infection, experimented with seven types of antiseptics. Among those used were a 2 per cent tincture of iodine, solutions of green soap and water, and ether. Each one of the preparations was used on 25 patients at the time of regularly scheduled operations. Samples of the skin, after the use of these antiseptics, were taken from the region of the operation.

Heavily Contaminated

With all antiseptics, at least five to eight samples of skin were taken from the groin region, as this is usually heavily contaminated with germs.

Each antiseptic drug was put on the patient and left in contact with the skin for the length of time necessary to prepare for surgery, but not longer than five minutes. Then the skin specimen was taken. An attempt was then made to see whether or not bacteria would grow on the skin that was sterilized in this manner.

Almost impossible

From this experiment it was apparent that it is almost impossible to produce sterilization of the skin by any of the methods tried, but certain of the antiseptic drugs were of greater efficiency with the least amount of side effects.

It was found from this study that a preparation made from a chemical known as acridine was effective in eliminating the bacteria with little side effects, as was also two per cent tincture of iodine.

SYNOPSIS

When highly desirable Dr. Nicholas Cowan asked Dr. Mollie Brooks, his lovely co-worker at Boone Hospital, to marry him, she turned him down flat. Too much to make a good husband she thought. So she centered her interest on the new young red-haired Resident Surgeon, Dr. Peter Shepherd, who had much to learn. When Mollie was suddenly stricken with abdominal pain, Shepherd attended her at Boone. Influenced by the evil whisperings of Clara Wayne, his landlady, Peter unfortunately made certain tests on Mollie, and although these proved negative, they nevertheless gave rise to ugly gossip. Outraged by this indignity, Dr. Cowan decided to teach Shepherd a lesson in professional ethics, one he won't forget. At a staff meeting, he ridiculed Shepherd with withering scorn, humiliating and contrite for having needed Clara Wayne, Peter calls on Mollie Brooks to apologize. She receives him graciously. For all his mistakes, she likes this brave young man. Then he calls on Clara, warning her to "shut her mouth" henceforth—an impossible feat, of course.

CHAPTER TWELVE

IT WAS that small, select group made up of the servants in the neighborhood who did what their white folk could not do. They were able to kill the gossip simply and effectively.

Clara did her chatting to Hazel. Hazel remembered the night Dr. Brooks took sick? Well, it seemed they'd been right—

"Some say she and Dr. Cowan are married..."

"They're not!" said Hazel emphatically.

"Have they quarreled?"

"I don't know."

"I believe they have. But I wonder if they did it before or after..."

"After what?" asked Hazel, with that blank stare which sets up a barrier no white may cross.

She determined to speak directly to Mr. Sylvester about the matter. This was the best thing ever done for Mollie. Because Sylvester could tell Hazel, and she could tell Eddie the doorman, and he could tell the doorman at the hotel, and so on, that Sylvester had stood right in the library of Dr. Cowan's house and had heard the doctor ask Miss Doctor would she marry him. That was about a month ago, maybe six weeks. Anyway, a month before she was sick. Sick with a stomach ache, Dr. Cowan had told Sylvester. He asked right out would Miss Doctor please to become his wife, and Miss Doctor, she say no, she would not.

Now, it didn't stand to reason—

So eminent was Sylvester's respectability that his conclusions were accepted as valid, and his opinion on the matter became authoritative fact. Hazel and Eddie and the hotel doorman believed him. The hotel doorman told Mrs. Walker, the housekeeper, and the story, as true, returned to the kitchen and the living rooms of the Square. And pretty soon the whites were ready to laugh at such tales about Mollie Brooks.

It was then that Mrs. Irvine mentioned the matter to her doctor-husband, and he told the hospital side of the affair, with Clara convinced as guilty of starting the brush fire in both directions.

"Someone," said the doctor, "should make that woman keep her mouth shut!"

Mollie went on her way, unconscious of most of this turmoil. She had become used to a certain amount of gossip fanning her person; people were ready to talk about any woman; being a doctor increased this tendency; her success added its own push.

But just now, Mollie's first attention was being occupied by the change which had taken place in her life. It was so abrupt, this reversal of Nicholas' interest in her. For years he had given her his attention, his company—and then—she still tried to argue that he should not have been either surprised or upset at her refusal to marry him. It was as if they took opposite sides in any argument—she had a right to her position.

Nicholas gave her no opportunity to argue the matter with him. On the few occasions when she saw him she tried to make such an opening; he evaded her efforts.

In the month between his proposal and her illness Mollie had told herself, somewhat angrily, that he was staying away to let her miss him, to show her—

But that was not like Nicholas. His instant help to her when she was ill, and his immediate return to his manner of withdrawal from her and her affairs, convinced her that he had meant his offer of marriage as his simple declaration of love had not done. He had meant his offer, and he did her the honor of thinking she meant her refusal. Her reason for it.

She had meant it! But couldn't they—

No, it seemed they couldn't. And she did miss him. She realized only now how constantly he had used to be with her. She missed the privilege of going casually to his home, sure of a welcome there. She missed his way of dropping into her apartment, for five minutes, for an evening call after she came home from the hospital session, he had not been near—and she missed him.

The tempest over his diagnosis of her illness had served to establish a bond between Mollie and Peter Shepherd not otherwise probable between a Staff and a Junior Resident. Beginning with his turning her surgical back to her charge after her absence, Peter saw a lot of Mollie in the hospital. He stayed on in the orthopedic wards for a time; when he left, he could always ask her about the cases which he had attended. They had the additional sympathy of mutual bruises. Misery loves company, and company so established has a particular significance.

With Mollie also, there lingered a vapor of that dream which she had had of this young man. It had been such a vivid dream, so particular in its details. Mollie laughed at herself, but wondered if some day the dream might be realized...

Anyway, Peter was a nice chap, and such a nice chap needed a bit of guidance from his elders. Not that Mollie felt so "elder," but she did have a few years' advance training with which to forewarn him and advise him. If he wanted advice.

He seemed to. One morning when she visited a ward where Peter was on duty, he asked her if she could maybe give him a few minutes soon to talk over a "matter."

"What sort of matter?"

"This personality angle of doctoring. It gets beyond me sometimes, and you've been so kind—"

"A personality I know?" she asked guardedly, her pen busy on a form which she was making out.

"Yes. Or I wouldn't ask."

Her shoulder twitched toward the crowded ward. "This isn't a good place to talk."

"Oh, no. But after hours..."

"When are you through?"

"Five. For an hour."

"I have office hours until four. I get through about five." She smiled, and when she smiled, her freckles ran together on her cheeks, her rippled nose crinkled.

"I could meet you—"

"You walk toward my office—down Kingshighway, and then Maryland—we can talk as we go home again."

"Check!"

They met in front of the hotel, and Peter suggested that they go in for a drink. Mollie agreed.

The hotel bar was a popular gathering place for the hospital personnel, especially the doctors. It catered to this patronage, served strange drinks concocted by, and named for, certain doctors. Once a tablecloth on which an anatomist had drawn illustrations for a discussion was hung upon the wall; it stayed there until an eager-beaver student stole it for a souvenir. The hospital people called the place Ward 13.

It was a rather odd place, all things considered, but doctors are somewhat hybrid people and ceased to notice the oddness. Albert would know their "poison" and have it ready before they could order; no one would disturb a tired intern with four hours off duty should he choose to doze in the corner of a booth. This bar served as a sort of decompression chamber between the tension of their work and the slower pace of outside life. That it was a bar had no significance except to people like Clara Wayne and her friend Lilly. Albert himself was proud that he sold as many glasses of milk and orange juice as he did of "real stuff."

This evening, the place was well filled when Mollie and Peter entered it. Peter beaming with pride in his companion, Mollie frowning slightly because her favorite table—and Nicholas—was occupied.

But there was a booth—she started to it, pulling her brown beret from her head as she went. Peter stopped to speak to Ragdale and his wife who sat on stools at the bar.

"You travel in rich company, Shepherd," drawled Dr. Ragdale.

"Oh, yes..." said Peter, his shining eyes belying the boredom of his tone.

The other doctor's eyes also waited Mollie as she talked to a waiter. "Weren't you the boy with the doll and innocent life?"

"No! It's only innocent," laughed Peter, starting away. "Eyes, you two—I can't waste any more of my valuable time on residents."

Diana Lynn

NEW YORK—Diana Lynn is, I should say, the kind of girl about whom nobody feels neutral. If you are a man who likes your women giggly and moronic, making you feel like the intellectual king of the ages, Miss Lynn will gripe the ears off you.

If you like your women to be able to talk with passable intelligence on some subject other than the high cost of lipstick, Miss Lynn is your dish of tea and she will fascinate you as she has me.

I always have been intrigued particularly by Diana because she appeals to the amateur psychoanalyst in me. I have known her for seven or eight years now, and on the few occasions we have come across each other I have detected a sharp change in her. At 16 Miss Lynn was violently and beautifully in love with existence. Life was a great big ball, and—I imagine—she kept peering around the corner for the white knight in shiny armor.

Now at 25, Miss Lynn still is charming but her guard is up. There is a mildly harassed air about her and I keep feeling that I should take her in hand and say, "All right—so life isn't a four-star smash hit. It has points."

Diana is in New York now for about the 20th time in her short life. Over breakfast coffee at the Town House she told me about the first time she came to the big drag. "I was 14," she said, "and Susanna Foster (another starlet) and I came here for three days on a personal appearance tour. We had a nurse, a teacher and a press agent with us and we didn't see anything. We were too young to be let out alone."

A COUPLE OF YEARS LATER (when she still had that great big parcel of ideals) she came in for some publicity work in connection with The Major and the Minor, and once again she had no chance to get the feel of New York.

"Oh, I got to see the Statue of Liberty and Central park and things like that," she said, "but always with a press photographer or a newspaperman along. And when I went to a show or anywhere at night, I went with a lot of charming—but terribly old, from my standpoint—publicity people."

"I remember I stayed at the Sherry Netherland and at night I used to go out on the fire escape and smoke—I wasn't supposed to—and cry my eyes out, in sheer loneliness."

Well, the years went on and Miss Lynn was exposed to all the glittering—and tawdry—life of a young actress, and ultimately she grew up. I have this amateur mind-reader's opinion that somewhere along the way she was hurt, as the novelists say. However, no matter—soon, as a practicing movie star, she began making semi-annual trips to New York... and, I report happily, becoming converted.

"I went through all that El Morocco-Capocabana stage," she explained, "where it had to be a new set of cafes every night, all terribly sophisticated. I came out of that unscathed and now John (her husband, a California architect) and I go to the places we like."

"Last night we got to the Embers and then went down to Eddie Condon's and we listened to the good jazz we like. Earlier in the day we window-shopped for hours and turned up, like real New Yorkers, at the Museum of Modern Art." Her eyes gleamed.

ACCORDING TO DIANA, she had a chance to do The Moon Is Blue, that sheer delight among stage comedies, last fall and turned it down. Later she got mad at herself—and, like our old friend Joan Caulfield and so many others, got away from the cameras long enough to put in some serious licks at stage acting.

She played The Voice of the Turtle and Ring Around the Moon and spent six months of hard work at it. The reason, she said, is obvious—Broadway is her aim. When the right part and play come along—

When she flew into Manhattan this time, she got off the plane with that dull, this'll-be-tough feeling. "Three hours later, however," she said, "I was sitting in a nice restaurant having dinner, and the city's vigor and excitement was in me already. I looked around and said: 'This is wonderful!'"

And you know, Diana—it is.

STATES HAVE THE SAY

UNDER authority of a "rider" attached to the tax-hoisting bill recently passed by Congress, it is now possible to make public the names of all persons who are on government relief rolls. It was one of two features of the bill which met with opposition from President Truman. The other was the amount of the tax increases. He thought taxes should have been higher.

Because relief rolls are now open to public inspection, it is widely predicted many unworthy persons will be separated from this boon.

It is now up to state legislatures to authorize actual publication of welfare lists, but if they listen to professional welfare workers few will do so. It is contended thousands of older persons are on welfare lists simply because their well-to-do children will not care for them as long as they can shift the burden to the government. It is predicted the threat of publicity would, through its effect on family pride, cause them to change their attitude.

The yearly cost of public welfare has mounted to more than $2,000,000,000 in federal aid alone—and at a time when the nation is presumed to be highly prosperous, with jobs for all.

JOKER IN FEDERAL AID

IT IS gradually dawning upon the American taxpayers that the millions of dollars the federal government is paying out in "grants-in-aid" to the various states is coming from the pockets of the taxpayers themselves, and not from some mysterious treasure chest which automatically refills itself. Last year the total was more than $2 billion. In 1920 it was only $106 million.

Except in cases of emergency these grants are made on a matching basis, the various states appropriating sums equal to those received from the federal government. Many states have been reduced to parlous financial straits by taxes necessary to meet their obligations in this respect, and many state governments are learning that what had been looked upon as blessing now turns out to be a curse.

Federal taxes collected in the various states are so vast that the money returned in the form of "aid" sinks into insignificance in comparison.

What it amounts to is simply this: The states send the money to Washington, which retains more than 95 per cent of it, then returns the balance in a grand gesture of generosity—not neglecting, however, to instruct the states what to do with it.

These Days

Prof. Henry Steele Commager of Columbia university once wrote:

"Certainly it is a gross perversion not only of the concept of loyalty but of the concept of Americanism to identify it with a particular economic system."

This is undoubtedly true, but it is unimportant. I do not believe that any question of an "economic system" is involved in the contest which is being waged in this country against the Communists, against subversive or corrupt persons. Certainly when a protest is made against a thieving tax collector, the issue is not whether he is a Capitalist or a Socialist, a Republican or a Democrat. The point is that we are shocked by the fact that thieves have worked their way into government. We challenge them as thieves.

So Communists are not opposed because they believe in government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange but because they are agents, spies, provocateurs for an alien power, for a government that uses propaganda, infiltration and corruption as a means of military conquest.

amount of gossip fanning her person; people were ready to talk about any woman; being a doctor increased this tendency; her success added its own push.

But just now, Mollie's first attention was being occupied by the change which had taken place in her life. It was so abrupt, this reversal of Nicholas' interest in her. For years he had given her his attention, his company—and then—she still tried to argue that he should not have been either surprised or upset at her refusal to marry him. It was as if they took opposite sides in any argument—she had a right to her position.

Nicholas gave her no opportunity to argue the matter with him. On the few occasions when she saw him she tried to make such an opening; he evaded her efforts.

In the month between his proposal and her illness Mollie had told herself, somewhat angrily, that he was staying away to let her miss him, to show her—

But that was not like Nicholas. His instant help to her when she was ill, and his immediate return to his manner of withdrawal from her and her affairs, convinced her that he had meant his offer of marriage as his simple declaration of love and not done. He had meant his offer, and he did her the honor of thinking she meant her refusal.

Her reason for it. He had meant it! But couldn't they—

No, it seemed they couldn't. And she did miss him. She realized only now how constantly he had used to be with her. She missed the privilege of going casually to his home, sure of a welcome there. She missed his way of dropping into her apartment, for five minutes, for an evening

Except for one fifteen-minute call after she came home from the hospital session, he had not been near—and she missed him.

The tempest over his diagnosis of her illness had served to establish a bond between Mollie and Peter Shepherd not otherwise probable between a Staff and a Junior Resident. Beginning with his turning her surgicals back to her charge after her absence, Peter saw a lot of Mollie in the hospital.

He stayed on in the orthopedic wards for a time; when he left, he could always ask her about the cases which he had attended. They had the additional sympathy of mutual bruises. Mollie loved company, and company so established has a particular significance.

With Mollie also, there lingered a vapor of that dream which she had had of this young man. It had been such a vivid dream, so particular in its details. Mollie laughed at herself, but wondered if someday the dream might be realized.

Anyway, Peter was a nice chap, and such a nice boy needed a bit of guidance from his elders. Not that Mollie felt so "elder," but she did have a few years' advance training with which to forewarn him and advise him. If he wanted advice.

He seemed to. One morning when she visited a ward where Peter was on duty, he asked her if she could maybe give him a few minutes soon to talk over a "matter."

"What sort of matter?"

"This personality angle of doctoring. It gets beyond me sometimes, and you've been so kind—"

"A personality I know!" she asked, guardedly, her pen busy on a form which she was making out.

"Yes, or I wouldn't ask."

Her shoulder twitched toward the crowded ward. "This isn't a good place to talk."

"Oh, no. But after hours..."

"When are you through?"

"Five. For an hour."

"I have office hours until four, I get through about five." She smiled, and when she smiled, her freckles ran together on her cheeks, her flintlike nose crinkled.

"I could meet you—"

"You walk toward my office—down Kingshighway, and then Maryland—we can talk as we go home again."

"Check!"

They met in front of the hotel, and Peter suggested that they go in for a drink. Mollie agreed.

The hotel bar was a popular gathering place for the hospital personnel, especially the doctors. It catered to this patronage, served strange drinks concocted by, and named for, certain doctors. Once a tablecloth on which an anatomist had drawn illustrations for a discussion was hung upon the wall; it stayed there until an eager-beaver student stole it for a souvenir. The hospital people called the place Ward 13.

It was a rather odd place, all things considered, but doctors are somewhat hybrid people and ceased to notice the oddness. Albert would know their "poison" and have it ready before they could order; no one would disturb a tired intern with four hours off duty should he choose to doze in the corner of a booth. This bar served as a sort of decompression chamber between the tension of their work and the slower pace of outside life. That it was a bar had no significance except to people like Clara Wayne and her friend Lilly. Albert himself was proud that he sold as many glasses of milk and orange juice as he did of "real stuff."

This evening, the place was well filled when Mollie and Peter entered it. Peter beaming with pride in his companion, Mollie frowning slightly because her favorite table—and Nicholas—was occupied. But there was a booth—she started to it, pulling her brown beret from her head as she went. Peter stopped to speak to Ragdale and his wife who sat on stools at the bar.

"You travel in rich company, Shepherd," drawled Dr. Ragdale.

"Oh, yes..." said Peter, his shining eyes belying the boredom of his tone.

Other doctor's eyes also studied Mollie as she talked to a waiter. "Weren't you the boy with the dull and innocent life?"

"Now it's only innocent," laughed Peter, starting away. "Bye, you two—I can't waste any more of my valuable time on residents."

NEW YORK—Diana Lynn is, I should say, the kind of girl about whom nobody feels neutral. If you are a man who likes your women giggly and moronic, making you feel like the intellectual king of the ages, Miss Lynn will gripe the ears off you.

If you like your women to be able to talk with passable intelligence on some subject other than the high cost of lipstick, Miss Lynn is your dish of tea and she will fascinate you as she has me.

I always have been intrigued particularly by Diana because she appeals to the amateur psychoanalyst in me. I have known her for seven or eight years now, and on the few occasions we have come across each other I have detected a sharp change in her. At 16 Miss Lynn was violently and beautifully in love with existence. Life was a great big ball, and—I imagine—she kept peering around the corner for the white knight in shiny armor.

Now at 25, Miss Lynn still is charming but her guard is up. There is a mildly harassed air about her and I keep feeling that I should take her in hand and say, "All right—so life isn't a four-star smash hit. It has points."

Diana is in New York now for about the 20th time in her short life. Over breakfast coffee at the Town House she told me about the first time she came to the big dog. "I was 14," she said, "and Susanna Foster (another starlet) and I came here for three days on a personal appearance tour. We had a nurse, a teacher and a press agent with us and we didn't see anything. We were too young to be let out alone."

Pointers On Arranging Flowers Given By Florist To Garden Club Members

Christmas Workshop Set

Buddhist priests in India were the first flower arrangers, according to Robert Brehmer Jr., who addressed a meeting of Pickaway Garden Club Friday evening in the home of Mrs. Sterley Croman.

"Priests learned to preserve the flowers that were brought by worshippers as gifts to the gods," he declared.

"Flower arranging was later fostered in Japan and from the Japanese we get basic fundamentals for modern design," he added.

In his talk, Brehmer gave five rules governing a good arrangement: Distinction; relation of container to design; color harmony; proportion and perfection of arrangement.

Advising his audience on making arrangements, he gave several pointers to follow. He said an arrangement must have strong lines at the base as focal points; it must balance with perfect symmetry; no crossing of leaves or branches; use an uneven number of sprays or flowers; flowers should not be on the same level or height and avoid combinations which are illogical, either seasonally or culturally.

The florist closed his talk by displaying several pictures of old fashioned wedding bouquets, in contrast with today's bridal flowers which have a more tailored appearance.

In addition to his address, Brehmer also acted as judge for the tie-breaking dining table arrangements. Mrs. Turney Pontius was awarded first; Mrs. Fred Cook, second and Mrs. Lewis Sharpe, third.

In the monthly exhibit first prize for berried shrub arrangement was won by Mrs. Cook; Mrs. Dudley Carpenter, second; and Mrs. Luther Bower, third.

Mrs. Carpenter presided at a business meeting of the club when it was voted to purchase bird baths for Circleville Home and Hospitals and the Sunrise Nursing Home, and to continue the custom of decorating the three institutions at Christmas time.

Members decided to participate in a flower show to be held in Columbus the first week in May and, through Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, regional vice-president of Garden Club of Ohio, the group invited Garden Club of Ohio to hold its annual meeting in Columbus.

Mrs. Croman was assisted in serving a salad course by Mrs.

Forrest Croman, Mrs. George Steeley, Mrs. Edward Stephens and Mrs. Elmon Richards. Guests were Mrs. Paul White, Mrs. Clem Clark and Mrs. George Barnes.

There will be a gift exchange at the next meeting of the group to be held in Presbyterian church social rooms, Dec. 7. At this time members will bring accessories and the program committee foliage for making Christmas arrangements.

Achievement Day Is Held By 4-H Club Group

Junior Circle Sew Straight 4-H Club held a combination Halloween party and achievement day program in the home of the club adviser, Mrs. Donald Wolf of East Mill street, Thursday evening, with mothers of club members as guests.

Members came masked and prizes were awarded Harriett Hall, Georgianna Fowler and Katherine Fowler.

For the program of music and recitations those taking part were: Beverly Wolfe, Juliann Smith and Patty McCain. Mrs. Wolf presented each girl with a pin and certificate for completing the year's work, and told of the things accomplished during the year.

Another feature of the meeting was a safety contest. Girls were taken to Mrs. Wolf's kitchen where she had set up many safety hazards and the girls were asked to identify them.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests followed with refreshments served by Mrs. Wolf and Mrs. Gladden Troutman.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

CHURCHILL'S TASK

Most editors agree that the influence of Prime Minister Churchill in foreign affairs will be more effective than that of his predecessor, Clement Attlee. But opinion appears to divide about equally on whether Britain's trend from Socialism is strong enough to support measures Churchill must take to cure England's economic ills. Editors in one group question whether even Churchill can inspire the further austerity and increased production necessary to regain the British trade lost by Socialist experiments and disintegration of the British Empire. Other editors are more confident that Churchill can do the job.

WALL STREET Journal (Ind.): "What is significant about the British election is not that the Conservatives won with a smaller majority than expected, but that they won at all. Their victory is the most outstanding setback socialism—not only in Britain but in the world—has yet suffered. At the end of the war, the British socialist Labor party came to power with a thundering majority (in popular votes and seats in Parliament). . . But there stands the phenomenon that socialism declined in six years from pre-eminence to defeat. The realization penetrated the British consciousness that the socialist vision was awry."

BOSTON Herald (Ind.): "The Labor Party polled well over 200,000 votes in excess of the Conservative tally. . . Our guess is that the slight Parliamentary margin of 18 seats in Churchill's favor resulted not from deep convictions as to domestic policies, but rather from the embarrassed state of Britain's foreign affairs and the widespread faith in Churchill as a proven leader in times of international crisis. Churchill promised little. He spoke against Labor socialism, but there is little doubt that most of Labor's 'welfare state' will remain, shorn perhaps of some of its industrial ownership."

HOUSTON Post (Dem.): "The Conservatives will halt nationalization in its tracks, denationalize at least one industry—steel—and in time possibly others. . . Their paramount, urgent task is to increase British production for export, in order to build up the nation's shrinking dollar margin, which is the margin of prosperity. In order to boost production, they must somehow get the people to work harder. Maybe the genius of Churchill can do this, where the Laborites failed."

LITTLE ROCK Gazette (Dem.): "The fact is that most of the economic changes in Britain have resulted as much from external forces as from the experimenting of the Laborites. The vulnerable trade position of the home islands after the empire disintegrated in the wake of World War II forced government intervention in virtually every segment of the economy. . . The job ahead of the new government is an enormously difficult one—and it will not be made any easier by the fact that the Attlee group lost not only to the Conservatives but to the Left-wingers in the Labor Party. . . headed by Aneurin Bevan."

RICHMOND (Va.) Times - Dispatch (Ind. - Dem.): "Churchill's government is more likely to receive American dollar aid than Attlee's could have hoped for. His credit standing is high. There is every reason to believe that he will be guided not by the wishes of an economically uninformed electorate, but by patriotic determination to restore the fiscal integrity of Britain. He, if anyone, should be able to convince Britons that more sweat now will mean less tears later, that Britain must consume less and make more. . . that a six-day week may have to be restored for the duration of the emergency. . ."

PITTSBURGH Post - Gazette (Ind.): "It has long been clear that Britain. . . must disinflate her economy and restore production incentive at all levels of industry. The one entails holding down wages until some of the helium has been let out of prices; the other entails repudiating the dead-levelism which in practice has become the meaning of Labor's doctrine of 'fair shares.' Both steps involve risks of strike reprisal by unions in Britain which, unlike their counterparts in America, don't recognize that they have more to gain from promoting an expanding economy than from merely divvying up a contracting one."

ATLANTA Constitution (Dem.): "This election is a turning point in British history. One can almost hear the ponderous wheels turning. If the Tories fail, the swing will be more to the left. If Aneurin Bevan is able to take over the control of the Labor Party now held by Attlee, he will be in a position to cause grave trouble. It will be up to him to discipline the more left-wing unions which have been threatening to slow down if the Tories won. This would be un-British and we do not believe Bevan will allow it."

DYNAMITE, TUGGING LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER BLAST FURNACE BLAST

By HERBERT FOSTER
Central Press Correspondent
PUEBLO, Colo.—A tugging locomotive aided by a dynamite blast toppled a 50-year-old blast furnace here. The unique method was used to hold the loss of pig iron production to a minimum while a new furnace was being readied for operation.

Usually when steel shells of furnaces begin to show the strain of years, they are dismantled piece by piece. At the Minnequa steel plant of the Colorado Fuel & Iron corporation, however, a new shell, more than 160 feet high and weighing 400 tons, was constructed alongside the old shell while the latter continued to spew pig iron around the clock.

When the new shell was completed, heavy steel supporting columns under one side of the old shell were replaced with heavy timbers. Part of the bricks were removed, dynamite was placed under the timbers, and a cable fastened to the top of the shell was attached to a locomotive. A tug by the locomotive and a dynamite blast marked the beginning of the end. The old shell shuddered, and crashed to earth.

660 Additional Teachers Needed By Ohio Schools

A state education official, who lives in Pickaway County, believes 660 additional teachers could be used in Ohio if they were available and if there were classrooms in which to house them.

Harold J. Bowers of Ashville, state supervisor of teacher education and certification, cited the figure before the regional conference on improving the supply and quality of elementary teachers, meeting at Bowling Green State university.

Bowers said Ohio schools lost ten percent of their teachers from the first aid, scouting and patrolling, and map reading will be taught.

close of the last school year to the opening of the current year.

He said 742 teachers resigned to take positions in business or industry, 253 entered the armed forces, 420 retired, 413 took teaching positions in other states, 89 died and 2,071 left for miscellaneous or undisclosed reasons.

Bowers stated that three major factors affecting the elementary teacher supply are salaries, selective recruitment and curricula.

The supervisor said the teacher shortage has shifted to the larger cities in Ohio since most of them prefer teaching in smaller communities.

Solon Says U.S. To Get Many Kinds Of A-Weapons

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—A congressman who watched the latest atomic tests in Nevada declared today the U. S. will soon have as many types of atomic weapons as of conventional TNT bombs.

Rep. Gore, (D) Tenn., one of five congressmen who witnessed the tests, said the A-bomb is now "a proven piece of hardware" which could be used on Korean battlefields.

The Tennessee congressman added that "we can use them in much the same way" as standard weapons and that they can be supplied and fired tactically as are heavy artillery, torpedoes, rockets and bombs.

Gore reported: "The precision and accuracy to minutest detail and second impressed me that we could now use an atomic bomb in a tactical way against enemy troops without serious risk to our own troops."

THERE WERE big explosions and little ones, he said, and added: "The little ones are more important than the big ones."

The congressman said bombs could be used to attack enemy troop concentrations or other vital military targets.

He added that any decision to use atomic weapons in Korea now should be left to President Truman and military leaders, but told newsmen that if current peace negotiations break down, "it might be well to use it."

Gore declared that there is no danger to American forces in use of the bomb in "normal tactical troop deployment."

The strategic bomb pile—the big bombs—cannot be underrated, he said, but declared it was quite possible that even in all-out war the terrifying weapon might not be dropped on cities.

The congressman recalled the fears of widespread gas warfare and bombs in World War II, but noted that poison gas was withheld by both sides.

The strategic bomb, the congressman suggested, might be used to immobilize the capacity of enemy-occupied industrial centers through radiological effects instead of being dropped on cities.

Gore said large numbers of troops witnessed the Nevada tests from the same vantage point as he did—"several miles away" from the blast.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE UP TO $10,000 FOR EACH DEPOSITOR

U. S. Must Build Civilian Defense

By MILLARD CALDWELL
U. S. Civil Defense Director

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the book, "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.)

No matter where you live—city, town or countryside—your part in civil defense is important. If you live on a farm you are on the enemy's high priority list for some kind of biological warfare attack. Your livestock and crops may get hit by some kind of F.W., and unless you are on the lookout for a possible sneak attack on what you produce, it might be too late to do anything about it. So it is of great importance to you that you know what to do in time. Civil defense will tell you.

If you live in a small town, you have a special kind of civil defense job. And it is of great importance too for it is helping and sheltering bombed out people from some nearby city where public buildings and homes have been blasted or burned to the ground.

The people in big cities are not going to panic and take to the hills, but thousands of them may have to be moved into your town for medical attention and help.

There also will be young children, expectant mothers, invalids and old people to care for. Your locality might be named as an evacuation area for this purpose.

If you are anywhere within reach of a major city, hospital facilities in your community surely would be tagged as reception areas for casualties. You understand now how important it is for you to take an active interest in your civil defense.

If you live in a large city, you will have a critical civil defense job to do. You will serve both as part of the civil defense team and as a member of a family which must make every effort to take care of itself.

YOUR DUTIES in that capacity will be very vital. If your city has more than 50,000 population, you probably live in a target area. Watch how your community organizes for civil defense. Read your newspapers, listen to radio broadcasts for information about your civil defense organization.

Any attack, even with regular bombs, is expensive for the enemy. Making it with atomic bombs costs a great deal more. An enemy would use atomic bombs only on targets which would pay-off in large scale damage. That means they would probably hit only the large cities, industrial centers, and other areas which would cripple our resources and upset the morale of our citizens.

By looking at a population or industrial map of the United States, you can see that there are a limited number of areas which would be hit with atomic bombs.

What you know about your own community will give you some idea of its importance to the enemy. You know what industries are located there and if they are essential to the war effort. One such industry generally does not make a target area, many such industries definitely do. Ask your local civil defense director.

Yes! Civil defense is YOUR business no matter where you live. (The next article will discuss how to volunteer.)

$2 Million Fund Set Up To Fight Poisonous Weed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — Agriculture Department officials have launched the first major offensive in the battle against halogeton, a poisonous weed that is causing severe cattle losses in the west.

The Bureau of Land Management plans to spend $2 million to reseed strategic areas to prevent further spread of the weed and also provide forage for livestock which have been moved from infested sections.

Some work will be done this fall, but an intensive program will have to wait for more favorable weather next Spring or Summer.

A large number of control seedings are being located around the perimeter of the main infestation in Nevada, Utah and Idaho. Other operations are scheduled for the Wyoming-Utah and California-Oregon areas.

It is estimated that over one million acres of bureau and private lands are infested, but new infestations may add to that amount.

Workers will use chemical sprays, principally along roads and trails, to halt the spread of halogeton from centers of infestation.

LEADER PLEADS FOR SAFETY

Millionth Traffic Victim Could Be An Ohio Person

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — T. V. Kauer, director of the Ohio Department of Highways, appealed today to Ohio motorists and pedestrians to join the safety crusade to help postpone America's millionth traffic fatality.

Statistics predict that, if fatalities continue at the present rate, the motor vehicle is due to claim its millionth American victim sometime in December.

It took more than 50 years for the first million deaths in traffic but at the present fatality rate, according to the National Safety Council, the two millionth traffic death will occur within the next 30 years.

Accident records of the State Highway Department's division of traffic and safety show that motor vehicle accidents have claimed the lives of over 28,000 persons in the past 15 years in Ohio.

"Safe, sane use of our streets and highways will help to stop this killing," Kauer declared.

BECAUSE OF THE danger-filled attacks of rain, sleet and snow to be expected at this time of the year or in the immediate future, he urged motorists to keep speeds within reasonable limits, lengthen distance between vehicles on slippery pavements, signal intention to turn well in advance of actual turning movement, slow down for all railroad grade crossings, refuse to pass on curves and hills, and keep vehicles in the best of operating condition.

"Neglect to keep brakes in good condition, neglect to maintain wiper blades that recall clear windshield for severe snow and ice conditions can make some driver in our state the one who will kill, or will himself become, the millionth traffic victim in our country before this year ends," Kauer warned.

He also urged that pedestrian consider the longer distances needed by drivers in stopping on slippery pavements and take steps to avoid accidents by allowing plenty of time for crossing streets or highways and by looking both ways to make sure there is time to cross.

"Whether driving or walking," Kauer declared, "don't you be one in a million!"

First 9 Months Of Year Show Business Increase

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—Ohio retail sales increased six percent in the first nine months of 1951 as compared to the corresponding period of last year.

The Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State university said the year's retail sales in 1951 in Ohio's eight largest cities ranged from an 18 percent increase over 1950 in Dayton, to a two percent increase in Cincinnati and Columbus.

The bureau said the comparison between the month's sales for September of this year and those for the same month of 1950, however, showed a three percent decrease.

Motor vehicle dealers experienced the largest decrease of 20 percent, followed by household appliances, music and furniture stores with 17 percent decreases.

Smaller losses were shown in heating, plumbing equipment dealers (16 percent), jewelry stores (13 percent), florists (ten percent), and men's clothing and furnishings stores (ten percent).

Several lines of business showed increased sales for September, 1951, over the same period last year. Combination stores like meats-groceries, general stores with food and drug stores had increases of 16, six and five percent respectively.

U. S. Must Build Civilian Defense

By MILLARD CALDWELL
U. S. Civil Defense Director

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the book, "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration.)

No matter where you live—city, town or countryside—your part in civil defense is important. If you live on a farm you are on the enemy's high priority list for some kind of biological warfare attack. Your livestock and crops may get hit by some kind of PW, and unless you are on the lookout for a possible sneak attack on what you produce, it might be too late to do anything about it. So it is of great importance to you that you know what to do in time. Civil defense will tell you.

If you live in a small town, you have a special kind of civil defense job. And it is of great importance too, for it is helping and sheltering bombed out people from some nearby city where public buildings and homes have been blasted or burned to the ground.

The people in big cities are not going to panic and take to the hills, but thousands of them may have to be moved into your town for medical attention and help.

There also will be young children, expectant mothers, invalids and old people to care for. Your locality might be named as an evacuation area for this purpose.

If you are anywhere within reach of a major city, hospital facilities in your community surely would be tagged as reception areas for casualties. You understand now how important it is for you to take an active interest in your civil defense.

If you live in a large city, you will have a critical civil defense job to do. You will serve both as part of the civil defense team and as a member of a family which must make every effort to take care of itself.

YOUR DUTIES in that capacity will be very vital. If your city has more than 50,000 population, you probably live in a target area. Watch how your community organizes for civil defense. Read your newspapers, listen to radio broadcasts for information about your civil defense organization.

Any attack, even with regular bombs, is expensive for the enemy. Making it with atomic bombs costs a great deal more. An enemy would use atomic bombs only on targets which would pay-off in large scale damage. That means they would probably hit only the large cities, industrial centers, and other areas which would cripple our resources and upset the morale of our citizens.

By looking at a population or industrial map of the United States, you can see that there are a limited number of areas which would be hit with atomic bombs.

What you know about your own community will give you some idea of its importance to the enemy. You know what industries are located there and if they are essential to the war effort. One such industry generally does not make a target area, many such industries definitely do. Ask your local civil defense director.

Yes! Civil defense is YOUR business no matter where you live. (The next article will discuss how to volunteer.)

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

In response to the demand for a more comprehensive form of children's insurance, the Sun Life of Canada announces the new Junior Adjustable Assurance, a policy which:

1. Permits regular small payments which will be greatly to the child's advantage when he reaches 21.
2. Starts assurance coverage at the early ages when the premium is at minimum rates. Premium never increases.
3. Covers expenses incurred through death in childhood.
4. Is flexible, permits a wide choice of valuable options and a considerable increase in face value (actually to five times the original amount) at age 21, without medical examination.
5. Ensures protection should the child later become uninsurable.

Let me show you what this plan can do for your son.

$2 Million Fund Set Up To Fight Poisonous Weed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 — Agriculture Department officials have launched the first major offensive in the battle against halogeton, a poisonous weed that is causing severe cattle losses in the west.

The Bureau of Land Management plans to spend $2 million to reseed strategic areas to prevent further spread of the weed and also provide forage for livestock which have been moved from infested sections.

Some work will be done this Fall, but an intensive program will have to wait for more favorable weather next Spring or Summer. A large number of control seedlings are being located around the perimeter of the main infestation in Nevada, Utah and Idaho. Other operations are scheduled for the Wyoming-Utah and California-Oregon areas.

It is estimated that over one million acres of bureau and private lands are infested, but new infestations may add to that amount. Workers will use chemical sprays, principally along roads and trails, to halt the spread of halogeton from centers of infestation.

LEADER PLEADS FOR SAFETY

Millionth Traffic Victim Could Be An Ohio Person

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — T. V. Kauer, director of the Ohio Department of Highways, appealed today to Ohio motorists and pedestrians to join the safety crusade to help postpone America's millionth traffic fatality.

Statisticians predict that, if fatalities continue at the present rate, the motor vehicle is due to claim its millionth American victim sometime in December.

It took more than 50 years for the first million deaths in traffic but at the present fatality rate, according to the National Safety Council, the two millionth traffic death will occur within the next 30 years.

Accident records of the State Highway Department's division of traffic and safety show that motor vehicle accidents have claimed the lives of over 28,000 persons in the past 15 years in Ohio.

"Safe, sane use of our streets and highways will help to stop this killing," Kauer declared.

BECAUSE OF THE danger-filled attacks of rain, sleet and snow to be expected at this time of the year or in the immediate future, he urged motorists to keep speeds within reasonable limits, lengthen distance between vehicles on slippery pavements, signal intention to turn well in advance of actual turning movement, slow down for all railroad grade crossings, refuse to pass on curves and hills, and keep vehicles in the best of operating condition.

"Neglect to keep brakes in good condition, neglect to maintain windshield wipers or neglect to use tire chains for severe snow and ice conditions can make some driver in our state the one who will kill, or will himself become, the millionth traffic victim in our country before this year ends," Kauer warned.

He also urged that pedestrian consider the longer distances needed by drivers in stopping on slippery pavements and take steps to avoid accidents by allowing plenty of time for crossing streets or highways and by looking both ways to make sure there is time to cross. "Whether driving or walking," Kauer declared, "don't you be one in a million!"

Bearcats Listed As Top Gridmen

Cinny Unbeaten In Eight Starts

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—The University of Cincinnati's Bearcats today reign as Ohio's only undefeated and untied college gridmen after notching their eighth straight victory of the season.

The Bearcats squeaked past an upset-bound Hardin-Simmons 13-12 at Abilene, Texas, Saturday for their lowest score of the year. Breathing hot on their heels in the waning season are their neighbors, Xavier university's Musketeers, who kept their unbeaten but once-tied record with an idle weekend.

The two powerhouses will clash Nov. 17 for what may be the state's mythical championship, provided they both slip past opponents this weekend.

HEIDELBERG dropped from the undefeated ranks by losing its first game to Morris-Harvey, 21-20. The Student Prince record now stands at 5-1-1. The eleven, however, holds two wins in Ohio Conference play and is second to Ohio Wesleyan, which has 4-0 in the league.

The Bishops edged Mt. Union 13-12, scoring all their points in the first half on the passing of Hayden Buckley and the tally-running of Jack Allen.

Denison's Big Red stayed in the top brackets in the conference by overrunning Wittenberg 38-7 for a 3-1 showing.

The win was their third straight in loop play. Halfback Bob Vogts counted three times in the rout on passes from Dave Maurer.

In other conference games, Muskingum trounced Marietta 37-7 and Hiram and Otterbein deadlocked 12 all on a muddy, snow covered field.

In the only Mid-American game, Toledo surprised Ohio university

Only 2 Weeks Left To Find Hunting Places

Hunters: It's less than two weeks to the opening of the 1951 Ohio small game season. Do you know where you are going to hunt?

If you haven't seen the landowner yet, and haven't made his acquaintance—do it now. Don't wait until the opening day of the season.

See the farmer or landowner now. Discuss with him his particular problems and desires for hunting on his lands. Assure him that his fences will be respected, gates closed and that fields of standing grain will not be violated.

Doing this will not only enhance your chances for good hunting this year, but will clear the way for hunting in the future.

GOOD FARMER-sportsman relations is the key to future good hunting in the state of Ohio.

If you haven't picked out a place to hunt on privately owned lands or are unable to obtain permission for such hunting, don't forget that there are 69 public hunting preserves scattered throughout the state, where you may hunt without permission. Only a few of these areas require that you register before going into the fields.

8 Cage Tilts Set In County For This Week

Eight top-notch cage tilts are carded this week for Pickaway County basketball fans.

This weeks contests will begin Tuesday with three encounters, ending Friday with five games, four of them openers in the Pickaway County Basketball League.

Tuesday's schedule calls for all three games to be played in this county, with Midway at Darby, Madison Mills at Jackson and Fairfield at Monroe.

In addition, a junior high game is slated for Tuesday afternoon between Wayne Township and Washington Township juniors in Washington Township school.

FRIDAY'S SLATE opens this year's county league, with Ashville at Jackson; Saltcreek at Atlanta; Pickaway at Scioto; and Williamsport at Walnut.

A non-loop test scheduled for the night pits New Holland against Clarkburg on the New Holland court.

Monroe and Darby, codefenders of the county basketball league championship, will begin their league play against invading Walnut while Darby will travel to Saltcreek.

The refining of sugar is believed to have begun in Persia.

Browns Collect Fifth Straight With 34-17 Victory Over Cards

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—The Cleveland Browns and Chicago Bears, those two perennial stickouts in professional football, are still doing business at the same old stand.

The Browns and Bears are at the head of their respective conferences in the National Football League and remain as the teams to beat for the crown.

The Clevelanders racked up their fifth straight win of the year by beating the Cardinals in Chicago

Tigers Getting Ready For Test Against Lions

Circleville high school's Tiger football team Monday began practice for its final—and most important—game of the 1951 football season.

The Tiger gridgers were readying themselves for Friday night, when they will buck up against the highly-touted Washington C. H. Blue Lions.

The Friday clash will be the last game of the season for both teams. It also will be the most important contest of the season for both teams, with the winner taking the honors in the South Central Ohio League.

BOTH TEAMS will be entering the Friday fray with identical SCO league records, both having won three league tilts in as many starts.

And both teams have impressive records for this 1951 season, with Washington holding a slight edge in the record department.

Washington's Blue Lions have collected seven victories and one tie in eight starts this season. Circleville has posted five victories this season, has tied two and lost one.

The accurate punting of Halfback Jerry Pritchard aided the Tigers in keeping its record from being further marred last Friday night when the CHS'ers battled to a scoreless deadlock against the Wildcats of Westerville.

And the Tigers fought to a 7-7 tie earlier in the season with St. Charles of Columbus. Lone loss for the locals was in a confusion-packed season opener with Holy Rosary, in which the Rosary Crusaders broke a long skein of losses by handing the locals a 6-0 setback.

WASHINGTON Blue Lions fought to a 13-13 deadlock near midseason in a contest against a strong Cincinnati Woodward team.

Both teams will have distinguished attacks in Friday's finale, providing the weatherman keeps his fingers out of the pie.

Circleville will boast one of the strongest aerial attacks of any Tiger team during the last few years if the weather permits, while Washington's forte will be on the ground with Carl Smith, halfback, as feature attraction.

Tiger gridgers were to have loosened up Monday from its snow-clogged Westerville game with calisthenics. Scrimmage was scheduled for Tuesday, dummy scrimmage with work on defense and passing for Wednesday and the final practice under the lights Thursday night.

SOLOSKY'S These Days

Although no one is to be adjudged guilty of anything because he has been subpoenaed by a congressional committee or questioned by it, it is reasonable to assume that if a witness claims the immunities of the Fifth Amendment, he knows that he has done something which could be self-incriminating. In a word, he admits moral guilt where no legal charge has yet been made.

This right that no person may be required to incriminate himself is strictly personal. No one may plead that the provision of information will incriminate a third person. Therefore, those witnesses before congressional committees who refuse to name others, are wrong when they claim immunity under the Fifth Amendment unless they have conspired with these others to commit a crime. In effect, when they make such a plea they establish the existence of a conspiracy to which the pleader has been a party.

What it comes down to is this: While a witness may invoke the Fifth Amendment as a justification for silence, you and I are entitled to assume that he does it because, in his own judgment, he had committed an infamous crime. So far as public opinion is concerned, he places himself in the awkward position of confessing to participation in improper, even in illegal actions, in spite of the fact that public officials may not know of or may not be able to prove his guilt.

Lawyers, who advise clients not dependent upon public opinion to claim immunity under the Fifth Amendment, may be sound. When they so advise motion picture, television, or radio folks or public officials, like tax collectors, to do likewise, they risk their clients' future because public censure is inevitable. The Fifth Amendment is wrecking careers.

Baker Seeking 25th Victory

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5 — Pittsburgh's Bob Baker goes after his 25th straight victory tonight against veteran heavyweight Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland in a 10-round bout at the Gardens in Pittsburgh.

Baker, unbeaten in pro bouts and a former Golden Gloves champion, is expected to enter the ring at 217 pounds, his lightest weight in several months. He has knocked out 17 opponents but earned the ire of sportswriters, who claim he's "too fat."

Although no one is to be adjudged guilty of anything because he has been subpoenaed by a congressional committee or questioned by it, it is reasonable to assume that if a witness claims the immunities of the Fifth Amendment, he knows that he has done something which could be self-incriminating. In a word, he admits moral guilt where no legal charge has yet been made.

This right that no person may be required to incriminate himself is strictly personal. No one may plead that the provision of information will incriminate a third person. Therefore, those witnesses before congressional committees who refuse to name others, are wrong when they claim immunity under the Fifth Amendment unless they have conspired with these others to commit a crime. In effect, when they make such a plea they establish the existence of a conspiracy to which the pleader has been a party.

What it comes down to is this: While a witness may invoke the Fifth Amendment as a justification for silence, you and I are entitled to assume that he does it because, in his own judgment, he had committed an infamous crime. So far as public opinion is concerned, he places himself in the awkward position of confessing to participation in improper, even in illegal actions, in spite of the fact that public officials may not know of or may not be able to prove his guilt.

Lawyers, who advise clients not dependent upon public opinion to claim immunity under the Fifth Amendment, may be sound. When they so advise motion picture, television, or radio folks or public officials, like tax collectors, to do likewise, they risk their clients' future because public censure is inevitable. The Fifth Amendment is wrecking careers.

Baker Seeking 25th Victory

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 5 — Pittsburgh's Bob Baker goes after his 25th straight victory tonight against veteran heavyweight Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland in a 10-round bout at the Gardens in Pittsburgh.

Baker, unbeaten in pro bouts and a former Golden Gloves champion, is expected to enter the ring at 217 pounds, his lightest weight in several months. He has knocked out 17 opponents but earned the ire of sportswriters, who claim he's "too fat."

Bearcats Listed As Top Gridmen

Cinncy Unbeaten In Eight Starts

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—The University of Cincinnati's Bearcats today reign as Ohio's only undefeated and untied college gridmen after notching their eighth straight victory of the season.

The Bearcats squeaked past an upset-bound Hardin-Simmons 13-12 at Abilene, Texas, Saturday for their lowest score of the year. Breathing hot on their heels in the waning season are their neighbors, Xavier university's Musketeers, who kept their unbeaten but once-tied record with an idle weekend.

The two powerhouses will clash Nov. 17 for what may be the state's mythical championship, provided they both slip past opponents this weekend.

HEIDELBERG dropped from the undefeated ranks by losing its first game to Morris-Harvey, 21-20. The Student Prince record now stands at 5-1-1. The eleven, however, holds two wins in Ohio Conference play and is second to Ohio Wesleyan, which has 4-0 in the league.

The Bishops edged Mt. Union 13-12, scoring all their points in the first half on the passing of Hayden Buckley and the tally-running of Jack Allen.

Denison's Big Red stayed in the top brackets in the conference by overrunning Wittenberg 38-7 for a 3-1 showing.

The win was their third straight in loop play. Halfback Bob Vogts counted three times in the rout on passes from Dave Maurer.

In other conference games, Muskingum trounced Marietta 37-7 and Hiram and Otterbein deadlocked 12 all on a muddy, snow covered field.

In the only Mid-American game, Toledo surprised Ohio university with a 13-6 win, sparked with a 61-yard touchdown romp by Bob Carson.

DAYTON'S FLYERS, who dropped their only game of the season to unbeaten Xavier, coasted to a 36-0 shutout over John Carroll yesterday in Cleveland for their sixth win. Jim Akau scored three times, once on a 57-yard sprint.

Miami's Redskins hosted Buffalo and ignored the visitors' vaunted aerial attack to win 27-7 for their fifth victory against two losses.

Bluffton continued to lead the Mid-Ohio circuit by dumping Defiance 26-6 in its final game of the season. The squad finished with a reputable six wins and two losses for the year and 4-1 in league competition.

Other results included: Capital 18, Ohio Northern 6; Hamilton 26, Kenyon 12; Findlay 20, Ashland 6; St. Bonaventure 39, Youngstown 7; Wooster 20, Allegheny 6; Rochester 14, Oberlin 0; Rose Poly 14, Cedarville 6; and Wilmington 21, Manchester 20.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 5—The sale of 850 harness racing horses, largest of its kind in the world, begins here today at the opening of the 13th annual Standardbred Sale.

The giant five-day sale climaxes two weeks of trading and selling at Indianapolis and Trenton, N. J. Highlight of the Trenton sale (Oct. 31 to Nov. 2) was the dispersal of Village Farm of Langhorne, Pa.

The Harrisburg venue, shooting for the million-dollar mark for the fifth straight year, has carded four big sales including that of the W. N. Reynolds Estate, Winston - Salem, N. C. Reynolds died in September leaving 40 head of standardbreds, his entire racing and breeding interests, to go on the block.

Tar Heel and Solicitor, the fastest three-year-olds ever known to harness racing, are among the group.

TAR HEEL won the $66,000 Little Brown Jug in world record time Sept. 21 and Solicitor was second to him in the fastest heat.

Feature consignment is that of the famed Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa., which is sending 100 head of horses into the ring. The consignment includes some well-established sires and the first crops by Hoot Mon, winner of the 1947 Hambletonian, and Knight Dream, who won the 1948 Little Brown Jug.

Death of three other well-known owners during the current racing season necessitated the other dispersals. Bidders there will get cracks at Stanton Hal, Royal Blood and the stallion Frisco Dale. They are among the 71 head consigned by the estates of Benny Franks, Dubuque, Ia.; H. C. Wilson, Murfreesboro, Tenn., and Fred B. Greenly, Harrington, Del.

FRIDAY'S SLATE opens this year's county league, with Ashville at Jackson; Saltcreek at Atlanta; Pickaway at Scioto; and Williamsport at Walnut.

State Conservationist Scheduled To Give Address Here

Local Group Books Meet On Nov. 12

Election Part Of Program

Thomas C. Kennard, state conservationist for the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, is scheduled to be the speaker at the annual dinner and election of supervisors to be held by the Pickaway Soil Conservation District in Circleville First EUB service center Wednesday, Nov. 12 at 6:30 p. m.

The terms of supervisors Paul J. Hay, Lawrence Liston and R. E. May expire this year.

Candidates for election for the coming three years are: Winfred Bidwell of Circleville Route 2, Miller Fissell of Circleville, Paul J. Hay of Ashville, Louis E. Hill of Orient, R. E. May of Circleville and Russell Wardell of Williamsport.

All farm landowners, whether or not cooperators of the Pickaway Soil Conservation District are being invited to vote in the election. Women who are co-owners of land are eligible also to vote.

PERSONS WHO failed to obtain dinner tickets in advance may attend the meeting that will follow the election, according to James A. Muster, county conservation aide.

Following the dinner, the election of supervisors and Kennard's address, the district annual report by Muster will be heard.

Two motion pictures will be offered by County Agent Larry Best and the announcement of election results will conclude the program.

Advance sale of dinner reservations by group leaders out in the county indicates a good attendance, Muster said.

Kennard was born in Morgan County, and is a graduate of the college of agriculture, Ohio State university. For ten years he served as agricultural extension agent in two Ohio counties. Four years were spent operating a poultry and fruit farm.

In 1934, at the start of the first soil conservation demonstration project in Ohio, Kennard was called in to take charge of the farm planning work.

This project was in the Salt Creek Watershed in Muskingum County. He was moved to the regional office at Dayton as assistant regional conservator. Since 1942 he has been state conserva-

Illinois Gets New Weapon

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—Illinois farmers are now using a new weapon to combat another livestock threat. This menace is vibriosis, a disease that causes abortions and breeding failures.

Veterinarians in that state may now obtain laboratory tests for the disease by sending blood samples to the state university.

Although the new test is still in the experimental stage, earlier research has shown it to be quite accurate.

Kingston Lad Hurt Running Into Truck Path

A 12-year-old Kingston lad was in fair condition in Berger hospital Monday following injuries suffered in a traffic accident Saturday afternoon.

He is Roger DeLong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth DeLong, who suffered a fractured nose, head injuries, face lacerations and body bruises when he ran into the path of a truck in Kingston Saturday.

The accident occurred about 5:30 p. m. when the lad was crossing Main street in the village's business district. The DeLong boy apparently did not see the oncoming truck, which was traveling north on Route 159.

Driver of the truck, a Laurelville man, unidentified by hospital authorities, immediately stopped. The

Protestants Told They Must Unite Or Face Chaos

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 5—Dr. Paul E. Scherer of New York emphasized that Protestants today must be united on the Christian gospel or face chaos.

Dr. Scherer, former pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church and now a faculty member at Union Theological Seminary, addressed Clark County Protestants yesterday at the fifth annual Community Reformation Service at the Wittenberg college field house. He said:

"Never mind uniformity. Wherever these denominations of ours bear effective witness to some particular emphasis of the Christian boy was not overrun by the truck, but suffered injuries caused by the impact.

He was taken to the office of Dr. R. E. Lightner, Kingston, and then removed to Berger hospital.

He said there is a "unity that already binds us, the work of God's spirit" which cannot be denied but can be betrayed.

The service was sponsored by the Clark County Council of Churches, the Clark County Ministerial Association and Wittenberg college. There were 34 churches of most Protestant denominations participating.

OSU Gag Ruling Gets New Twist In Opposition

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—Opposition to Ohio State university's new speaker-screening rule had a new twist today.

The art section of the Ohio Education Association transferred its meeting scheduled for Nov. 29 to Dec. 1 from the university to Canton because of the board of directors' order that prospective speakers must first be cleared by the office of the president.

The site transfer was authorized by the section's executive committee. In a letter to President Howard L. Bevis, Manuel Barkan, section president and head of the art education area, said in part:

"Although the committee in no way fears that any of its program participants would not be acceptable, it viewed such an infringement of free expression with extreme concern.

"The committee expresses the hope to you that this ruling will be rescinded and that facilities of the OSU may again be freely available to professional and educational organizations in the state."

About 350 of the 600 members are expected to attend the meeting.

Kingston Lad Hurt Running Into Truck Path

A 12-year-old Kingston lad was in fair condition in Berger hospital Monday following injuries suffered in a traffic accident Saturday afternoon.

He is Roger Delong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Delong, who suffered a fractured nose, head injuries, face lacerations and body bruises when he ran into the path of a truck in Kingston Saturday.

The accident occurred about 5:30 p. m. when the lad was crossing Main street in the village's business district. The Delong boy apparently did not see the oncoming truck, which was traveling north on Route 159.

Driver of the truck, a Laurelville man, unidentified by hospital authorities, immediately stopped. The

Protestants Told They Must Unite Or Face Chaos

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 5 — Dr. Paul E. Scherer of New York emphasized that Protestants today must be united on the Christian gospel or face chaos.

Dr. Scherer, former pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church and now a faculty member at Union Theological Seminary, addressed Clark County Protestants yesterday at the fifth annual Community Reformation Service at the Wittenberg college field house. He said:

"Never mind uniformity. Wherever these denominations of ours bear effective witness to some particular emphasis of the Christian boy was not overrun by the truck, but suffered injuries caused by the impact.

He was taken to the office of Dr. R. E. Lightner, Kingston, and then removed to Berger hospital.

gospel, let them. Tolerance doesn't involve laxity. The wiping out of convictions marks no advance toward anything but chaos."

He said there is a "unity that already binds us, the work of God's spirit" which cannot be denied but can be betrayed.

The service was sponsored by the Clark County Council of Churches, the Clark County Ministerial Association and Wittenberg college. There were 34 churches of most Protestant denominations participating.

OSU Gag Ruling Gets New Twist In Opposition

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5—Opposition to Ohio State university's new speaker-screening rule had a new twist today.

The art section of the Ohio Education Association transferred its meeting scheduled for Nov. 29 to Dec. 1 from the university to Canton because of the board of directors' order that prospective speakers must first be cleared by the office of the president.

The site transfer was authorized by the section's executive committee. In a letter to President Howard L. Bevis, Manuel Barkan, section president and head of the art education area, said in part:

"Although the committee in no way fears that any of its program participants would not be acceptable, it viewed such an infringement of free expression with extreme concern.

"The committee expresses the hope to you that this ruling will be rescinded and that facilities of the OSU may again be freely available to professional and educational organizations in the state."

About 350 of the 600 members are expected to attend the meeting.

CIRCLEVILLE VOTERS:

When you go to the Polls tomorrow you will be handed a ballot reading 'Proposed Tax Levy -- Renewal'

This ballot covers the proposed renewal of a two-mill levy for the Circleville City Schools. This levy furnishes a part of the funds necessary to the every-day operation of our schools. Without this levy, it would not be possible to continue to operate our schools adequately.

This levy is not a new one. It does not create any new or additional tax. It is simply a renewal of a levy already for many years in force.

May we, therefore, ask you to give this matter your earnest consideration? Protect the future of our children by providing adequate funds for the operation of our schools.
